To Whom It May Concern,

It is my distinct pleasure to provide this testimonial letter on behalf of Dr. Thomas J. Tobin, who recently served as the featured presenter for HigherEd+'s CETL Series Webinar Event titled "AI and UDL: Emerging Trends."

Dr. Tobin delivered an exceptional and engaging session that seamlessly integrated scholarly rigor with practical application. His ability to articulate the evolving relationship between Universal Design for Learning (UDL) and generative artificial intelligence provided our global audience with both clarity and actionable insight. Following the event, participants especially praised his balanced approach to the subject matter, emphasizing accessibility, academic integrity, and instructional quality while embracing technological progress.

As one of Eduflow's global Top 100 Learning Influencers and a recognized thought leader in technology-mediated education, Dr. Tobin brought deep expertise, contagious enthusiasm, and his trademark professionalism to every aspect of the collaboration. His preparation, responsiveness, and attention to detail made working with him a pleasure.

At HigherEd+, we are committed to providing the higher education community with evidence-based professional development experiences that accelerate institutional success. Dr. Tobin exemplified that mission through his insightful presentation, his engaging delivery style, and his commitment to inclusive, forward-thinking pedagogy.

I unreservedly recommend Dr. Tobin to any organization seeking an articulate, credible, and deeply knowledgeable expert on all things related to teaching, learning, and accessibility.
